Involvement in the case

In official record No. 3/2-0288/2026, A. V. Grishin is listed under Part 2 of Article 210 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation. This article concerns the extension of his detention.[2]

The matching initials correspond to the name provided by the editorial team, but do not in themselves confirm the date of birth. This is particularly important in the case of a common surname: information about people with the same name found in registers or on social media must not be added to the file without further verification.

Links to other individuals involved

Kommersant identifies Alexander as the husband of Alexandra Grishina and reports that he has retracted his initial statement.[1]

The personal connection between the defendants explains their joint mention in the publications, but does not constitute evidence of specific actions. In describing a moderator’s work, what is relevant is their rights on the forum, the tasks assigned to them and the nature of their own participation, rather than merely their relationships with other staff members.

Limits of the established information

The verified materials do not contain a published judgement regarding Alexander Grishin, details of his stake in Kraken, or a confirmed figure for the proceeds of crime. He cannot be attributed the platform’s total turnover. To ensure the dossier is complete, documents are required specifying the charges and the subsequent progress of the case.

Date of verification: 13 October 2026. The editorial team’s information regarding the full name and date of birth is separate from the data from the judicial source.
