The Spanish shipment and the firearms incident

According to the facts of the case, Mazilu acted in concert with two other defendants: they imported cannabis from Spain and attempted to conceal it for subsequent sale. An additional quantity of cannabis, intended for sale, was discovered at his place of residence. [1]

In the same year, he was charged with the unlawful possession of firearms and ammunition. The brief record states that these offences were taken into account when sentencing; the exact quantities of cannabis and the model of the weapon have not been disclosed. [1]

Why does this case relate to European drug trafficking?

Spain is listed here as the country of origin of the drugs, whilst Romania is listed as the country that issued the alert. Geographical origin should be distinguished from nationality and from the confirmed current whereabouts. The public alert, including a photograph, was updated on 21 May 2026. [1]
