The theory regarding shipments from South America and Africa

According to the allegations, between 2007 and 2017, whilst in Spain, Kanis, together with his accomplices, organised the procurement of cocaine from South America and hashish from Africa. After being delivered to and stored in Spain, the drugs were, according to the police, transported to other European countries. [1]

The destinations mentioned include the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, Romania, Poland and Lithuania. The source describes how consignments were concealed in specially prepared hiding places on ships, in trailers and in shipping containers, but does not disclose the individual size of each consignment.
