Charges relating to the fentanyl case

In April 2023, the US Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York brought charges against the leaders and alleged members of an international fentanyl network. According to the prosecution, the organisation coordinated the procurement of precursors, the manufacture and transport of the drug, and the repatriation of proceeds to Mexico. [1][2]

Alfredo Guzmán Salazar was named among the accused alongside Iván Archivaldo Guzmán Salazar. The individual DEA profile also contains drug-related charges and specifies federal jurisdiction in the Northern District of Illinois: the various proceedings should not be considered as a single case number.
