established whether they relate to the person in the photograph provided. [1] [2] [3] [4]

Who is mentioned in the reports on Hydra?

Publications from November mention Alexei Kornienko, Vladimir Verevkin and Roman Savonin in connection with the court case involving Alexei Baikov. These articles discuss site management, financial accounting and work with currency exchange offices as his alleged roles. The name of Viktor Grigoryevich Sveridenko does not appear in these materials. Sveridenko's procedural status or whether he is wanted in connection with the Hydra case has not been established by verified sources. [1] [2] [5]

Business Register. Entry under the same name

Public corporate registers linked to the Unified State Register of Individual Entrepreneurs (EGRIP) show that an individual entrepreneur with this full name was registered on 14 March 2022 in the Krasnodar Krai. This is a verifiable lead for further identification. The public profile that we managed to find does not provide grounds for linking this entry to the date of birth given in the source information or to the photograph provided. [3] [6]

Research profile. Why it cannot be linked automatically

The open 'Dissernet' database contains a profile for Viktor Grigoryevich Sveridenko, linked to research on joint-stock companies and Krasnodar. The match between the name and the region in several search results helps to compile a list of documents for verification. Linking the person in the photograph requires a document containing an independent identifier or some other verifiable biographical link. [4] [3]

What materials will help to verify the information?

Documents in which the full name is stated alongside the position, company or role being verified in a specific case are useful for editorial verification. For court information, the case number and the procedural document are required. For a photograph, the source and the original signature are important. If you can clarify this information, Please contact the editorial team. [3] [4]
